

One project developed in Norway is amongst the finalists competing for the 4th European eGovernment Awards 2009 - an initiative of the European Commission to stimulate innovation by identifying best practice examples using information and communication technologies in public sector organisations. This year 52 awards finalists from 17 countries are competing for the prizes. The winners will be announced on 19 November at the Ministerial eGovernment Conference 2009 in Malmö (Sweden). For the first time the finalists' projects are accessible online through a virtual exhibition.

Selected finalists 2009: Norway

This year three Norwegian cases were submitted. The finalist, the ELMER initiative, sets standards for public service web-forms, thus improving the user-friendliness and the quality of information provided.

In addition, another Norwegian project - Electronic Bankruptcy Estate Management - was recognised as good practice.

User Interface Guidelines for Government Web Forms (ELMER)

Simplified public forms = improved communication

Category 3: eGovernment enabling administrative efficiency and effectiveness

ELMER

Easier and more efficient reporting

ELMER constitutes a consistent set of rules defining a common look and feel as well as pedagogical requirements for public service web-forms. The objective is to facilitate users when filling out Government web-forms, improving their understanding of the task and enabling them to enter the correct information. For the relevant authority, the increased quality of information leads to a better quality of the response and to a more efficient processing.

EUROPEAN eGOVERNMENT AWARDS BACKGROUND

The purpose of the European eGovernment Awards is to support the implementation of European eGovernment policy and strategies and facilitate good practice exchange. In this context, since their launch in 2003 the Awards have been promoting the best ICT-based solutions for public services in Europe.

The European eGovernment Awards are organised every two years, coinciding with high-level EU Ministerial eGovernment conferences. Their aim is to monitor progress and identify policy and research priorities for the future. This year the 5th Ministerial eGovernment Conference, "Teaming up for the eUnion", is a European Commission-Swedish Presidency joint event. It will take place on 19-20 November 2009 in Malmö (Sweden). The European eGovernment Awards ceremony and Finalists Exhibition are integral parts of the conference.
